Pauline is a partner in the real estate team.

Pauline is a partner in the London real estate group specialising in non-contentious construction law. She regularly advises on construction and construction-related project documentation for energy, infrastructure and property development projects both in the UK and internationally. Pauline's clients include owners, developers, sponsors, investors and lenders in the energy and real estate sectors.

Her recent experience covers the construction of onshore and offshore wind farms, development and repowering of solar plants, route to market and power purchase agreements, as well as the design and construction of residential and commercial developments for the high-net-worth individuals, family offices, and the hospitality and leisure sectors.
