Edmund is a senior associate in the corporate team.

He works within the firm's business division in London, specialising in private capital.

He acts for an array of corporate clients including growth businesses, SMEs and large private corporations on mergers and acquisitions, private investments, joint ventures, and group reorganisations. In servicing these clients, Edmund frequently works with the firm's corporate specialists in New York, Hong Kong, Singapore and Milan, and provides advice to businesses in an array of sectors from fashion and hospitality to real estate, manufacturing and professional services.

In addition to servicing corporate clients, Edmund spends much of his time advising family offices and private individuals on making, re-structuring and exiting investments or preparing for the future and succession planning; to this end he works closely with his colleagues in the firm's wealth planning and tax teams in London, Geneva and New York. In this area of Edmund's practice, he advises on unit trust and partnership structures, in addition to company related matters.
