ASSOCIATE | NEW YORK

+1 212 848 9892

amanda.rottermund@withersworldwide.com

Amanda is an associate in the private client and tax team.

She has focused on art law from the beginning of her legal career, advising on many groundbreaking developments that are changing the landscape of the art market. Her work includes dealing with purchases, sales, loans, consignments and charitable giving of works of art. She also has experience representing borrowers in lending transactions with fine art as collateral and high net worth individuals and their families on tax, trust and estate planning matters, as well as the commercial art transactions associated with such planning.

Her alma mater, St. John's University School of Law, has recognized Amanda as a Next Generation Lawyer for her work in the art law field, in the Spring 2018 edition of its alumni magazine, St. John's Law Global Edition. Amanda has also been active as both an author and commentator, featured in publications such as Bloomberg BNA; Deloitte Art & Finance Report; Artnet News; Artsy; Trusts & Estates, the ABA's Real Property, Trust and Estate Law Journal; and the New York State Bar Association Arts and Sports Law Journal. In addition, Amanda will serve as incoming Secretary of the New York City Bar Association's Art Law Committee.
