Giulia is a partner in the private client and tax team.

Her areas of specialism include corporate and personal Italian and international tax, tax compliance and transparency (voluntary disclosure), tax litigation and tax rulings before the Italian Tax Authorities. In addition, Giulia assists with inheritance tax planning and is particularly knowledgeable in the taxation of trusts.

Her clients include high-net-worth Italian and foreign individuals, sports personalities and creative individuals in the arts and fashion worlds, along with major international brands and corporates with offices in Italy.

Giulia has been particularly active in advising private individuals, trustees, foundations and companies on how to become compliant with Italy's Voluntary Disclosure Programme as well as with FATCA and CRS (Common Reporting Standard).

In addition, she works closely with her IP colleagues in assisting clients who wish to take advantage of the new Italian Patent Box regime.

In 2016 Giulia was appointed to join a newly formed working group which will make recommendations on the drafting of a new trust law for Italy with respect to tax legislation. The team was put together by the President of the Select Finance Committee of the Italian Chamber of Deputies.

Giulia and her team have put together a task force to advise clients wishing to take advantage of the new Italian 'non-dom's' tax system.
