paul.askew@withersworldwide.com

Paul is the marketing and business development advisor to our global dispute resolution teams which include; commercial litigation, international arbitration, public international law, employment, media and reputation management, contentious trusts, divorce and family.

He brings a wide range of experience to the firm having worked in marketing, business development and business transformation roles in national and City firms for almost 20 years.

Paul works closely with divisional leaders and partners across the firm to develop and enhance our client relationships. A key focus is strengthening our reputation for handling complex cross border disputes for families, investors and high net worth individuals.

Based in our London office, he is largely focused on strengthening and developing commercial litigation and international arbitration opportunities in other jurisdictions including the US, Russia, Ukraine and the CIS, the Middle East and Asia.
